Welcome to Kido Whitefield

early years, reimagined

The first five years are the most crucial period of any child's life. And yet, the world over, Nurseries and preschools rely on 20th century teaching and technology to prepare children for the 21st century.

At Kido, we've set out to change that, and bring advances in pedagogy, design and technology to create the highest quality nurseries and preschools anywhere.

Across the world, and here in the heart of Whitefield, we're creating magical spaces for children to play, learn, grow and thrive. Reach out to us and your dedicated parent relationship manager will take you on a tour of a magical learning journey for your child.

Kido, Austin

“Such a lovely daycare. My daughter entered when she was nine months - she quickly settled thanks to the very caring environment. Lots of fun activities and super clean. Very good reporting on kids progress. I highly recommend it.”

Elodie F
Parent, Camden

"I cannot say enough good things about Kido Camden. I have two children here so we have experienced all the rooms from baby up to pre-school, and the quality and standard of care across the whole setting is outstanding."

The Kido Story

by parents, for parents

We are owned and operated by a group of parents from all over the world. We were set up in response to our founders' struggles as young parents in different cities around the world. So, since our first school in Hong Kong in 2014, we've been obsessed with two things: improving learning outcomes for children, and our service to parents.

To meet our twin objectives, we've invested significantly in people, technology and systems or every aspect of a nursery operation - recruitment, training, curriculum, operations, observations and assessments, parent communication and much more. We've served thousands of families in places as diverse as the USA, the UK, the UAE, India and China. Being international, we incorporate best practices from around the world in each of our schools.

Kido Preschools & Daycare

nursery, meet the future

We are on a mission to build the best early learning spaces in the world. According to the Reggio Emilia approach to early education, the environment is considered the third educator. With that in mind, we've created some of the most stimulating preschools and nurseries in the world. No location can ever be too beautiful for our children.

Our school design goes hand in hand with our pedagogy. Every area is set up to aid the learning journey of each child. Furniture and resources are curated from the best providers in the world. Our technology platform allows teachers to spend more time on the children and less on administration. We use technology as a tool to improve the experience of both children and parents.

"When I collect them, my children tell me how much fun they've had, taking part in different activities every day. They even request nursery on the days they're not attending, so that's a good sign."

Mihaela D
Parent, Houston

“As parents of Ava, we are very grateful to all the teachers for their dedication to nurturing the minds of the little ones. Thank you.”

Our Pedagogy

early years, reimagined

We believe that a combination of free and structured play, an engaging and interactive learning environment, and an abundance of love, care and attention provide the most solid foundation for children in the early years.

The Kido Early Years Program draws best practices from leading philosophies from around the world, such as Montessori, Reggio Emilia and the theory of Multiple Intelligences. It is developed in house and supported by a world renowned panel of advisors. Our pedagogical leadership team has over 200 years of combined experience in early years teaching, research and pedagogy across more than ten countries, and in multiple languages. We modify our program for each country that we operate in, to adhere to national curriculum framework
